

This circuit takes the VCC line, and increases the voltage to +30V. This HV line is used to provide the reverse bias to the SiPM.

Here, we are biasing the SiPM with the HV voltage (30V). There are decoupling capacitors used to reduce high frequency noise on the HV line.

